DEPARTMENT OF ELECTIONS CONCLUDES RECOUNT OF DISTRICT 7

Last night, bleary-eyed and muscle-sore election workers stayed late to finish the last ballots to be counted in the recount of the race between Mabel Teng and Tony Hall in Supervisorial District 7.

In all, the recount included 18,636 ballots that were originally counted by the Department's new Eagle voting system and were counted by hand in the recount. Nearly 11,000 ballots were cast in the precinct polling places, and the remaining 8,000 were absentee ballots.

The numbers of votes tallied for each candidate did vary slightly from the official results released in early January. Mabel Teng gained 5 votes overall, while Tony Hall gained 4 votes from the recount. Thus, the final spread between the candidates gave Tony Hall an edge of 38 votes to win the Supervisorial seat for District 7.

The Department had expected some variation in the numbers between the recount and the machine vote tally. That is because a voter in a precinct may submit a ballot that is marked in a way that the machine cannot read. While all voters were advised that their ballot could not be read if the Eagle rejected their ballot in the precinct, some did not take the opportunity to correct their ballot. When those ballots are reviewed in a recount, the Recount Board can often determine what the voter intended to vote for by the marks on the ballot, even though the machine did not pick them up. Seven votes were counted by hand in the recount that could not have been read by the machine due to the manner that the ballot was marked by the voter.

The recount began on January 12 and continued all but two weekdays and one holiday, up to yesterday's conclusion. The Department did not conduct the recount on January 22nd or 23rd, during which time the first voter who requested the recount withdrew his request, and another voter stepped up to request that the recount continue. Pursuant to state Election Code legal requirements, the voter requesting the recount had to pay the expenses, which totaled $22,547 for the entire recount.

Qualified Department staff made up the Recount Board. The Recount Board spent nearly two weeks in the elevator lobby of the basement of City Hall, holding up the ballots one by one for inspection by the parties, separating them into piles, tallying them as they were called out, and recounting the number of ballot pages for each precinct when the tally for that precinct was concluded.

Official recount observers included two representatives of the voter requesting the recount, and two representatives each for the Hall and Teng campaigns. Public observers consisted of a representative from the Secretary of State, a member of the Grand Jury, a member of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Elections, and the A. Phillip Randolph Institute.
